

Paykan crowned champion of Asia

Kiarostami to judge Italy filmfest

News Home Page

- Iran
- Middle East
- US
- Asia/Pacific
- Africa
- Europe
- Americas
- Sci/Tech
- Health
- Sports
- Society
- World business

Watch Live

Mobiles

Listen Live

News Feed

E-Mail News

Abdus Salam Prize for Iranian physicist

Mon, 11 Jun 2007 20:59:37

Iranian physicist Mohammad Mahdi Sheikh-Jabbari has been awarded the 2007 prize of Abdus Salam International Centre for Theoretical Physics.

Iranian physicist Mohammad Mahdi Sheikh-Jabbari has won the 2007 ICTP Prize.

Sheikh-Jabbari is a young researcher of the Tehran-based Institute for Studies in Theoretical Physics and Mathematics.

He is being commended "for his important contributions to non-communicative field theories in the context of D-branes and superstring theories, leading to interesting formal and phenomenological developments in theoretical and mathematical physics," according to ICTP website.

The 2007 ICTP Prize is designated in the honor of the prominent Russian physicist Lev Davidovich Landau who won Nobel in 1962. His 100th birth anniversary will be celebrated in 2008.

The Institute for Studies in Theoretical Physics and Mathematics, one of the prestigious Iranian research centers, is preparing to host the renowned theoretical physicist Stephen Hawking in July.

He will participate in the International Physics Olympiad in Isfahan after attending meetings in Tehran.

MKH/RE

Latest News

- Iran urges UN to confront Israeli threats
- Haniya's house under fire again
- US troops kill 7 Afghan police
- EU to resume talks with Cuba
- Bombers strike another Iraqi bridge
- G20 press for US, EU subsidy cuts
- Dutch, Egyptian FMs discuss Mideast

Spotlight

Reports

Gas prices

Interviews

The Secret History of the American Empire

Reflections

Iran is not another Iraq

News Analysis

Are Muslim armies relevant?

QUICK VOTE

Do you think the withdrawal of the occupation forces is the best solution to the restoration of peace in Iraq?

Yes

No

Submit

Current Weather

Paris, France
Cloudy, 15 ° C.

E-mail this to a friend

Printable version

Count of view : 36